Reference is made to the following documents:

D1: WO-A-00 35061 D2: US-A-6 018 151

D1 is considered to be the prior art closest to the present application. Said document is a member of the family of documents that includes US-A-6 486 569 (published after the priority date of the present application) cited by the applicant. Said document describes an apparatus that controls but does not alter the power in an electric power transmission network. No mention is made of devices that could act as sources or drains of voltage or current. The same difference is found in D2, where the power in the line section remains constant and only the current is controlled separately in each conductor, i.e. the power in the section itself is not altered.

Therefore neither D1 nor D2 proposes a solution enabling the power flow in a section of an electric power transmission line to be altered.

The subject matter of independent claims 1 and 12 is therefore novel (PCT Article 33(2)) and involves an inventive step (PCT Article 33(3)).

Claims 2 to 11 and 13 to 21 are dependent on claims 1 and 12, respectively, and thus also comply, as such, with the PCT requirements of novelty and inventive step.
